

March 4, 2024 – Missionaries on the Homefront (Ignatian Volunteer Corps)

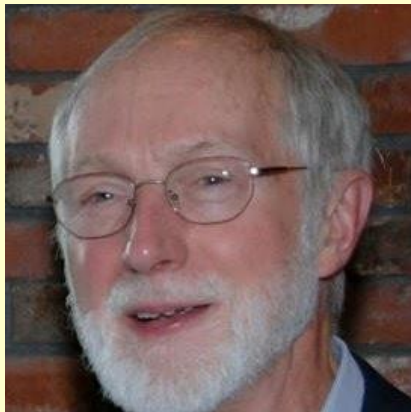

("Teach me to be generous, to serve you as you deserve to be served without counting the cost..."
Saint Ignatius

The Ignatian Volunteer Corps of New England provides mature (50 years of age and older) men and women the opportunity to serve the needs of the poor, to work for a more just society and to grow deeper in Christian faith by reflecting and praying in the Ignatian tradition.

Dave Hinchin, Regional Director of the New England Ignatian Volunteer Corps, will present us with information about the IVC, its impact and opportunities, experiences its volunteers have had and its structured spiritual component. A program volunteer will join him for this presentation.

Dave Hinchin

Dave Hinchin has been the New England Regional Director of the Ignatian Volunteer Corps from July 2010 until the present time. Dave is an experienced program administrator with an extensive community service background in urban, rural and overseas settings.

Dave attended Holy Cross, Saint Louis University and the Weston School of Theology. Dave has a very extensive background and has held a variety of highly responsible positions; a small sample of which includes his work as a Peace Corps volunteer and as Founder and Director of The Jesuit Volunteer Corps East.
